

S.E. Cupp & Brett Joshpe Biographies

S.E. Cupp was born in California and raised primarily in Andover, MA. She was a classically trained dancer and danced for Ellicott City Ballet, Washington Ballet and Boston Ballet for a period of 10 years.

After high school, she studied art history at Cornell University and worked for her college paper, Cornell Daily Sun, as the Arts & Entertainment editor. She graduated a year early from Cornell and subsequently worked at an online magazine and a PR company. In 2002, she was hired by the New York Times to write and edit for the Index Department.

She is currently pursuing a Masters degree at NYU in religious studies and plans to write about American culture—including politics, sports and religion, in the future.

S.E. follows the Mets, the Packers and NASCAR, and enjoys fishing, target shooting and travel.

Born in Stamford, NY, Brett Joshpe graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree from Cornell University in 2002 and a Juris Doctor degree from Harvard Law School in 2005. While in law school, Brett formed Students for Protecting America, which garnered national media attention for its support of the war in Iraq. He also served on the Republican National Committee's 72 hour task force in Miami, Florida in the days leading up to the 2004 Presidential election.

After law school, Brett worked as a corporate and real estate attorney at the law firm of Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton LLP. He now serves as corporate counsel at the law firm of Wrobel & Schatz LLP and has several business pursuits outside of law, including serving as a principal in the commercial real estate firm, Iconik Enterprises, LLC.

Brett's passions include playing sports, spending time with his family, discussing politics and following the New York Mets.
